

DEATH FOR GORE SEEMS CERTAIN; PLEAS DENIED

Supreme Court Declines To Grant Mandamus Writ Forcing New Trial for Doomed Youth.

NO LEGAL MERIT, SAYS HUMPHRIES

Fulton Superior Court Judge Explains Reason for Refusing Gore's Desperate Legal Measures.

Unless unforeseen legal action is taken or clemency granted by Governor Clifford Walker, Mel M. Gore will die in the electric chair at the state prison in Milledgeville Friday for the murder of William H. Cheek, Peachtree road grocer.

The supreme court Wednesday declined to grant a writ of mandamus ordering Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court, to sign a bill of exceptions to carry the extraordinary motion for a new trial to the supreme court.

Judge Humphries early Wednesday declined to sign the bill and Attorney Reuben Garland petitioned the higher court for the writ of mandamus.

In declining to certify the bill of exceptions, Judge Humphries ruled that he could see no legal merit in the extraordinary motion for a new trial, which set out that Gore was insane and had been of unsound mind since before the crime.

"Deeming it my duty, I decline to certify the bill of exceptions for the reason that I do not believe it contains any legal merit," the judge said. "For the same reason, I decline to entertain the alleged extraordinary motion for a new trial after the same had been presented and read and after considering the objections of the solicitor general and affidavits attached. Both the defendant's motion and the objections by solicitor are attached to the bill of exceptions. The objections of the solicitor general recite the previous proceedings in the case."

The only hope for the condemned youth, who now is in a death cell at the prison farm, is for Governor Clifford Walker to grant clemency. The governor left the city Monday for a fishing trip in Florida and will not return until after the execution. It is stated, he announced just prior to his departure that he would not grant attorney's plea for stay of the execution or for clemency.

After considering the motion for two hours, the supreme court handed down its decision. Justices Samuel Atkinson and James K. Hines dissented from the decision of the court. It is the second time in the case, which has attracted much interest, that similar proceedings have been launched just prior to the scheduled execution. Gore was sentenced to death by a jury in the Fulton superior court in an appeal made at that time. This order automatically stayed the execution, which was originally scheduled for September 14.

Gore was carried to the state prison farm a second time Tuesday morning.

WOMAN COURTED HIM, MAN 61, SUE FOR $50,000, SAYS

Chicago, November 24.—(P)—Edward J. Gibbons, 61 years old, and partly deaf, today introduced in court a letter calling him a "wonderful lover" and a "precious old lamb" in an effort to prove that Miss Frances Ryan, 38, who is suing him for $50,000 for breach of promise, did the courting herself.

The letter which he said she wrote was signed "Me" and Miss Ryan said "Me" was not me, but it was accepted in evidence.

Senators Insist Mexican Situation Holds No Danger

Take Issue With Kellogg, Say Situation Doesn't Excuse Threat for End of Recognition.

HOPE OF WAY OUT IS SEEN BY BORAH

Believes Mexico Can Find Method To Protect U. S. Citizens' Interests Under Land Laws.

(By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.) Washington, November 24.—Sharp issue with the state department's interpretation of the Mexican land laws was taken today by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, and other senators, who declared they found nothing in a study of the correspondence made public by the department yesterday to warrant a rupture of diplomatic relations with Mexico.

The senators who discussed the situation today, Norris, republican, Nebraska; Fess, republican, Ohio, are of the opinion that the state department is unduly alarmed, that the controversy has not reached a critical stage and that nothing would be gained in the way of protection of American property interests in Mexico by an open break, involving withdrawal of recognition from the Calles government.

Borah sees no break. "I do not see how withdrawal of recognition would help any," declared Senator Borah, "certainly we can better protect American lives and property under recognition than without. I do not think there is going to be any break with Mexico. I hope not. A break would not help matters in the least. Mexico is seeking to work out certain property problems, to change the nature of property, as it were, in Mexico. And the state department is seeking, while this process is going on, to protect the property rights of American citizens."

"Undoubtedly emphatic language has been used. An important matter of this kind naturally gives rise to definite and specific contentions. But it does not necessarily follow that we are going to break with Mexico. There is a difference of views between the governments as to the effects of Mexico's constitution and laws upon property of Americans. But I do not find in the notes any threat of any ultimatum. Mexico, of course, has a right to have any kind of property system she wants. Our sole interest in the matter arises out of the fact that Americans have acquired property and if Mexico finds a way to reasonably protect our interests, we will have no complaint. And I think Mexico will find a way to do this."

Would Wait for Action. Senator Borah's study has convinced him, it is known, that the Mexican land laws in dispute between the two governments can be made operative without the actual confiscation of any foreign-owned property. He holds that until enforcement of the laws actually results in a hardship or loss to American investors, which the Mexican government refuses to properly adjust, the United States has no valid cause for protest.

According to Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, "the stern action of the state department is not justified," and Senator Fess, republican, Ohio, declared he does not believe American rights in Mexico have been jeopardized to a point justifying an open break. Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, declared he regretted the turn of events in the controversy, but would not discuss the possibility of a break nor would Senator Swanson, democrat, Virginia, ranking democratic member of the foreign relations committee.

Being Thankful

Things are never so bad that they couldn't be worse. That's a big loop to the verbal lariat, and it catches everybody; so let's forget trials and tribulations and be thankful for blessings.

One of the things for which you may be thankful is The Constitution which comes to your home every morning with all the news of the world.

And then its advertisements—something else for which to be thankful. They keep you posted on what is up to date in every line, where to make your purchases quickly and economically, and give you first information on the best bargains to be had in Atlanta's splendid mercantile establishments.

"Pig Woman" Sinking; Death Is Expected

Jersey City, N. J., November 24.—Mrs. Jane Gibson, who was the state's star witness in the Hall-Mills murder trial, is sinking rapidly and has not long to live unless she rallies, according to an announcement from the city hospital, where she is under treatment.

If the "pig woman" continues to grow weaker, death will occur in a comparatively short time, Thomas G. Golden, secretary to the superintendent, said.

BY GRACE ROBINSON. (By Leased Wire to The Constitution and The Chicago Tribune.)

Somerville, N. J., November 24.—Two women battled for life today, in the strange human tangle growing out of the four-year-old murders of Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

One was Mrs. Jane Gibson, stolidly fighting death in the Jersey City hospital. The other was Mrs. Frances Stevens, Hall, in the Somerset county courthouse here. The lawyers of the Hall-Stevens defense tried frantically to batter down the Gibson woman's damning story that brands the aristocratic widow as murderer of Mrs. Mills, choir singer in the New Brunswick church of St. John the Evangelist, where Hall was pastor.

The Hall combine brought a parade of five witnesses to the stand today to say Mrs. Gibson lied when she linked Mrs. Hall and her brothers with the slayings.

Comes to Aid Relatives. Among them was Henry de la B. Carpenter, pale and worn, this stockbroker cousin of Mrs. Hall came from his cell in Somersetville jail to put in the last word for his relatives in their bid for continuation of their comfortable existence. Carpenter is under indictment for the murder of Dr. Hall, while Mrs. Hall and Henry and Willie Stevens also are under the same ones, as well as being now in the seventeenth.

BY THOMAS CADETT. Penology, or the ethics and science of treating criminals, has produced almost as many schools of thought as there are in economics. Facts first, however, discussion afterwards.

Atlanta penitentiary is the first place of its kind I have ever left, at the conclusion of a visit, without any feeling of regret for those inside. The loss of liberty is, of course, a terrible thing, but once accepting the necessity of restraint upon the criminal, prison seems to have been robbed of its horror at least in one place.

None of the well-worn, accustomed adjectives that are applied to such places will do for Atlanta. Neither

McLean Testifies Defendant Asked Him To Tell False Story at Senate Probe of Teapot Dome

CONSPIRACY TRIAL RECESSES IN ROW

Defense Fighting To Bar 'Confession' of Oil Magnate When Court Adjourns Over Thanksgiving Holiday.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, November 24.—The Fall-Doherty oil conspiracy trial recessed over Thanksgiving tonight with the defense frankly protesting the effort of the government prosecutors to lay before the jury the so-called "confession" which E. L. Doherty made to the senate Teapot Dome committee about the $100,000 he advanced to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior.

Just previously E. B. McLean, millionaire publisher of the Washington Post, revealed to the jury that Fall had asked him to tell the senate committee a false story to hide the facts that Doherty had actually advanced $100,000, which is regarded as a bribe by the government prosecutors.

All day the government had been building up its case against the noted pair of defendants. Producing letters, documents and eye-witnesses, the government constructed a narrative to the effect that:

Fall first broached to the navy department the proposal to trade navy oil for storage tanks in Honolulu. Fall had represented to Doherty that he had charge of all oil leasing matters.

Fall was misleading rival oil companies as to the government's intentions to lease oil tracts after it had already given leases to Doherty.

Proposal Preceded Loan. Fall discussed the Hawaiian navy fuel base project with navy officials and obtained a tentative proposal from Doherty before the $100,000 advance whereas Doherty's counsel had insisted previously that this project was not brought up until some time after the money transaction.

The defense placed great reliance on a letter from Denby to Fall instructing him to go ahead with the Hawaiian contract, but the prosecutors showed by the letters that this followed months after Fall had raised the subject, and that Denby's letter was a further argument but not a demand. Doherty advanced the $100,000 to Fall.

Willbur Subpoenaed. Meanwhile the defense subpoenaed Curtis D. Willbur, secretary of the navy, to produce secret documents supporting its contention that the Hawaiian naval base project was the result of a Japanese war scare. Willbur's further argument will be heard Friday before Justice Hoehling decides.

Returned Checks. In 1921, when Fall wanted to buy a ranch adjoining his in New Mexico, he asked McLean to loan him $100,000. McLean gave him checks which Fall returned a few days later un-

DRIVE IS LAUNCHED TO BRING NATIONAL DAIRY SHOW HERE

Mell R. Wilkinson Underwrites $25,000 Fund To Get Exposition at Fair Association Meeting.

ALLEN REELECTED TO HEAD BODY

Committee Named To Attend Annual Session of Dairymen in Chicago To Further Move.

With a $25,000 fund to defray preliminary expenses underwritten personally by Mell R. Wilkinson, first president of the Southeastern Fair association, a drive was launched by the association's executive committee at its annual meeting Wednesday to bring to Atlanta the 1927 national dairy show.

The show, if secured for Atlanta, will be the most ambitious undertaking in that line in Atlanta since the Cotton States exposition of 50 years ago, and will mean as much for the development of the agricultural south as the development of the industrial south, fair association officials asserted.

The meeting was held at the Atlanta Athletic club and was featured by reelection of Ivan E. Allen as chairman of the executive committee and formal announcement of the recent reelection of Arthur J. Brooke as president and Henry W. Davis as treasurer. A profit of $20,000, or 2,000 per cent of the capital stock, was officially announced for 1926.

Following Mr. Wilkinson's offer to guarantee the preliminary expense fund for the national dairy show, a special committee was appointed to advise before the officers and directors of the national association at their annual session in Chicago Monday with full power to act in a determined drive to land the tremendous dairy exposition for Atlanta.

Committee Members Named. The committee is composed of Ivan E. Allen, chairman of the forward Atlanta advertising commission; Judge John S. Candler, one of the foremost

1 DIES, 1 HURT, TRYING SUICIDE

Lewis Flanigan Takes Life With Poison; Mrs. E. W. Crudup Shoots Self in Suicide Attempt.

On the eve of Thanksgiving two suicide attempts were reported to Grady hospital. One resulted in the death of Lewis Flanigan, 34, of 548 Holderness street, well-known Atlanta insurance man, while Mrs. E. W. Crudup, 44, of 657 North Boulevard is in Grady hospital in a serious condition as the result of a bullet wound in her neck.

According to hospital attaches, Flanigan's act was attributed to despondency over continued ill health, while Mrs. Crudup was suffering from a severe headache at the time of her act.

Flanigan took several bicarbonate of mercury tablets late Wednesday afternoon at his home and died several hours later after he was removed to Grady hospital.

For several hours after he took the tablets did not make it known to members of his family but when he became suddenly ill and began to suffer in intense pain, he told his wife that he had taken a dozen of the poison tablets in an attempt to end his life.

A private ambulance of Harry G. Poole rushed him to Grady hospital, where he died within an hour.

The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of Barclay and Brandon, pending funeral arrangements which have not been completed.

Atlanta Today Will Render Thanks for Peace and Plenty

NUMEROUS FESTIVE EVENTS TO MARK DAY

BY LOY WARWICK. It is appropriate that a whole nation pauses today to give thanks for the many things it has to be thankful for.

It is fitting that the day should be called "Thanksgiving day," and well that it should be set aside by official proclamation.

For it is indeed a day of days. A day for prayer, for rest, for play. A day of feasting. A day for Tech to play Auburn and a day for many a football classic throughout the republic.

The popular idea is that when the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, November 21, 1620, they immediately fell upon their knees and gave thanks for their deliverance on this side of the great water.

In 1863 President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving day, but it was not until that time that it was proclaimed as a holiday and a day of Thanksgiving for the whole country.

And since that time it has been a red letter day in the calendar of the average American. It is his king and high priest of all festivals.

Atlanta, with the rest of America, will observe Thanksgiving day today.

The manner of the individual is optional. Some will go to church, some will spend the day in relaxation and rest at home, thousands will find their way to Tech Flats, where the football teams of Tech and Auburn meet in one of the annual gridiron classics of the south.

There is no doubt, however, that Atlanta will celebrate. And there is another thing certain, Atlanta is going to eat. The turkey supply has been plentiful and the demand exactly the same. It is the one day in the year when America forgets its diet and eats without fear or criticism or consequence. Turkey, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pie, mince pie, an inch thick, with a thin, flaky crust, tinted by its imprisoned juices, celery, rice and gravy—oh, mother, is dinner ready now?

The man who figures he has nothing to be thankful for is crazy, and really hasn't. But, at least, according to Ovid—"Thanks are justly due for the things gotten without purchase," at least.

Claude E. Buchanan, mayor pro-tem

Marie, Steaming Homeward, Bids America Goodbye

Prince Nicolas and Heana Spent Last Night in New York at Racy Theater Revue.

S. S. Berengaria, November 24.—(P)—Marie, in her glowing youth, Princess Heana challenged her mother, Queen Marie of Rumania, to a swimming bout soon after the steamer Berengaria passed out from New York on the voyage to France, but the queen, pleading fatigue, declined. The princess thereupon swam about the tank alone, while her brother, Prince Nicolas, looked on.

After a memorable farewell at the pier the queen sat on a deck chair reading some 200 telegrams and letters from friends.

Sixty Gifts Received. Sixty gifts were received on shipboard, including flowers, bouquets and vanity bags. Marie lunched and dined in the imperial suite. She voiced her secret at the necessity of canceling trips to Boston, Washington and the south, especially Washington, where a colonial ball had been organized in her honor. She believed that her journey has been helpful in promoting an understanding between the peoples of the United States and Europe, and that now she can interpret the people of America to those of Europe because of her study of American home life.

NAVY DEPARTMENT BELIEVES FLIERS ON SHIP ARE SAFE

Message Is Received at Washington From U. S. S. Cincinnati, Which Directed Search.

BARTLETT ORDERED TO RESUME FLIGHT.

One Ship Is Forced Down Off Isle of Pines, While Other Descends 213 Miles South.

Washington, November 24.—The naval seaplane PN-10 No. 1, missing in the Caribbean sea for more than 12 hours, was located tonight 213 miles south of the Isle of Pines by the U. S. S. Cincinnati, according to a message received by the navy department here. While the message from the Cincinnati, sent at 9:35 p. m., did not mention the crew, naval officials considered this to indicate that the flyers are safe.

The message stated that the plane was forced down by a broken connecting rod on the starboard engine. The position of the seaplane when found was given as latitude 17 degrees 54 minutes north and longitude 82.24 minutes west.

Will Resume Flight. Immediately upon hearing that the PN-10 No. 1 had been found, Admiral E. W. Eberle, chief of naval operations, Washington, sent a wireless message to Lieutenant Commander H. J. Bartlett, commander of the flight, ordering the PN-10 No. 2 to continue the flight when ready and when the guard ships are back on station. The PN-10 No. 2 was forced down at Neuva Gerona, off the Isle of Pines, at 6:30 o'clock this morning, due to the lack of fuel.

The message from the Cincinnati stated that the missing seaplane was approximately 22 miles west of the line of flight when found. An unofficial estimate of the distance covered by the plane was given at 1,257 nautical miles or 1,448.06 statute miles. Estimates here indicate that the flight of the PN-10 No. 1 is 392.94 statute miles less than the distance covered by Commander John Rodgers on the Hawaiian flight. The distance traveled by Commander Rodgers was 1,841 statute miles.

Message from Cincinnati. The message from the U. S. S. Cincinnati to the bureau of naval communications here was as follows: "Have found seaplane PN-10 No. 1 with broken connecting rod starboard engine. Latitude 17.54, longitude 82.24."

Admiral Eberle's message sent at 11 o'clock to the commander, aircraft squadron, scouting fleet, on board the guard ship U. S. S. Sand-

My Impressions of America

By Her Majesty QUEEN MARIE OF RUMANIA As Given to the Public Through the North American Newspaper Alliance

Queen Marie's Farewell

Here I am, my face turned eastward, with only a few days left to me upon American soil, and you want to know what I think of you, you want me to condense my thought into words, you want me to share my impressions with you, you want me to be quite open with you and to tell you what I have learned?

Well, dear people of America, above all I have learned to love you. This is the big, essential thing, the big, happy truth, around which all I have experienced centers.

I love you because of your warm-hearted hospitality, because of your generous desire to go forward and succeed, because of the frankness I find in you, which is the very basis of my own character and which I had met you abroad, and which I found again on reaching your shores. It was the great attraction that you had for me, that something simple and open-hearted which one could get at without diplomacy, and which makes one feel friends immediately, instead of laboring towards one another through a thousand unnecessary subtleties of which your younger nation knows naught.

POSTAL RECEIPTS SET NEW RECORD

Atlanta's growing importance as the commercial and industrial center of the south was further seen Wednesday when Edwin K. Large, postmaster, announced that receipts through noon had passed by $1,553.46 of the entire year of 1926, with December, the biggest month of the year, yet to be added to the 1926 total. It is estimated that the total gain for the year over last will be $200,000.

Up to noon Wednesday the total receipts were $3,630,677.44 as against $3,628,828.98 for the whole year of 1925. It also was pointed out that 1926 is the first in the history of the Atlanta postoffice that receipts for each month of the entire year have passed the $300,000 mark.

Estimated receipts for the December rush are $400,000 with $75,000 anticipated for the remaining days of this month.

Receipts for the third quarter of this year exceeded by $35,000 the total receipts for the entire year of 1925. First three quarters of this year stand as follows:

First, $1,012,415; second, $931,798; third, $1,013,946.

The outstanding feature of the year, Postmaster Large said, "is the fact that the receipts for every month have been over $300,000. This is the first time in the history of the office that this has been true. This is particularly gratifying in that it indicates business has been progressing rapidly and substantially."

"Of course the coming of Sears, Roebuck and company has boosted the receipts along with the influx of other business firms, but I have felt that something far more important is really at the bottom of the enormous increase in receipts, which is a reliable barometer of prosperity."

"I believe that the far famed Atlanta spirit has been rejuvenated. Atlanta is a city on her feet and wide awake for new business and development. Evidence of the rejuvenated spirit are the wonderful advertising campaigns put through this year, the sincere interest in the newest form of commercial transportation, air mail and passenger service, and the remarkable strides made in the development of our schools and other civic facilities."

MISSING SEAPLANE FOUND; ALL SAFE

Under the U. S. S. Raleigh and the PN-10 No. 2 read as follows:

"Authorized PN-10 plane No. 2 continue flight when ready and guard ships on station."

Crew Is Well Known.

Members of the crew of No. 1 plane constitute one of the best known groups of navy fliers.

Lieutenant Byron J. Connell flew on the historic Hawaiian flight with the late Commander John Rodgers and was lost for days in the Pacific. His mother is Mrs. Eva Merchant Connell, 444 N. E. Second avenue, Miami, Florida.

Another member of the crew also was on that famous flight, aviation pilot Skiles R. Pope. His home is at 649 North Second street, Memphis, Tenn. He received with other members of the Rodgers crew, a letter of commendation from the secretary of the navy for his service on that flight.

Lieutenant Lawrence W. Curtin, an Annapolis man, also assisted Commander Rodgers in his preparations for the Hawaiian flight but did not go with him. Afterward he came to Washington as Rodgers' aide. He was close to international fame a few months ago when he was assigned as navigator to accompany Rene Fonck on the ill-fated trans-Atlantic flight.

He closely escaped death when the giant Sikorsky plane caught fire and burned up as it was taking off. His wife is Mrs. Ellen J. Curtin, 615 Jefferson street, Beardstown, Ill.

Radimian John R. Roe served on the battleship Texas which was with the British grand fleet during the war. He went into the navy radio service after the war. His mother is Mrs. Rosa Agnes Roe, 54 Detroit street, Akron, Ohio.

CINCINNATI TO TAKE PLANE IN TOW TODAY

Washington, November 25.—The U. S. S. Cincinnati in a message sent at 11:15 o'clock last night and received by the navy department at 12:40 o'clock this morning, stated that she was towing the disabled PN-10 No. 1 tonight and would take it in tow at daybreak. The ship requested further instructions.

day of trial for the Mills woman's slaying.

A long procession of New Jersey aristocracy testified in an effort to dissipate the old legends of the scandalous Mrs. Hall's face and the suspicion that her grown-up son, the finding of the bodies of the rector and his paramour on a farm near De Cusse's lane, New Brunswick, on September 10, 1922.

The courtroom might have been the setting for an English play of high society. There were prominent Episcopalians present and more society women than one sees at an English rectory tea. They all had rallied protectively to the side of one of their own class, who is in distress.

Most of them will be in the audience on Friday when Mrs. Hall takes the witness stand to plead that she never raised a finger against her philandering husband and his choir singer innamorata.

The famous murder trial continued today to feature its side issue of woman against woman.

Daughter Assails Mother.

Before the day was over a daughter, Mrs. Mabel Kieckner, had branded as a liar her own mother, Mrs. Mary Dearest, who swore for the state that she saw Ralph Gorsline and Mrs. Minna Clark spying on the rector and his wife.

Gorsline is a vestryman of the church of which Dr. Hall was pastor and Mrs. Clark is a parishioner of the church.

A recently married woman angrily denied that she tarried in De Cusse's lane with one Robert Ehring the night when Mrs. Gibson made her historic jump from the mole.

If the jury believed all the persons that testified today for Mrs. Hall and Henry and Willie Stevens, those 12 cool men and the must be convinced that Senator Simpson, special prosecutor, marshalled the world's record collection of prevaricators when he presented his case.

Every witness today brought a verbal sledge hammer and struck vicious-other of its size in the outside world. The drug addicts, still in process of reclamation to sanity, were herded together in one ward, a pitiful, listless crew. More of that aspect later; it is enough here to say that they were enjoying, in prison parlance, "cold turkey," that is to say a cure by enforced abstinence from drugs. Contrary to the accepted idea that gradually diminishing losses are required for successful treatment, medical authority here reports complete cure usually at the end of one week. What happens when they return to liberty, of course, depends upon the will-power of the individual.

JURY TOLD FALL PLOT TO HIDE LOAN

cashied, saying he had obtained the money from the bank.

In 1923, when the senate Teapot Dome committee was on the trail of the money, Fall sent for McLean to meet him at the Ritz-Carlton hotel in Atlantic City.

"He looked bad," McLean said. "He said to me, 'Ned, would you mind saying to the committee that I don't remember, and I have no recollections' at his interrogator."

Willie talked frankly about his 32 caliber revolver, which was the size of the gun from which was fired the bullets that ended the two lives on the Phillips farm. He had had the gun 10 years, he said.

In a hurt tone, Willie denied he consulted his lawyers, when asked whether he would submit to an examination for epilepsy by a state expert.

Willie denied he had taken his revolver with him on his nocturnal search for a clew to the missing Rev. Hall's whereabouts.

Wrangle Over Carpenter.

The valiant effort of Henry Carpenter in behalf of his cousins was blocked by Senator Simpson, who, by his objections, precipitated a long wrangle between opposing counsel.

During this battle the jury was excused. Case explained to the court that Carpenter's story would be a blow at Mrs. Gibson's testimony.

"I think he will testify that when Mrs. Gibson said, 'yes, he is one of the men,' she did not look at him as she was lying here on her couch," Case said.

The cross-examination of Mrs. Gibson was necessarily of the most limited character. The court will remember that I read the demon investigator of Montana, the demon investigator who uncovered the evidence which led to the present trial. He was urged upon George as one of the government prosecutors but was not appointed. Now he was appearing presumably as a star witness for the government.

Senator Walsh Called.

He was called after McLean finished.

"J. J. Walsh," announced the bailiff and the noted senator mounted the stand to take the witness chair.

Roberts asked the dates on which E. L. Doherty appeared before the committee and ascertained that the last appearance, when the $100,000 admission was made, had been arranged at the suggestion of Doherty's attorney, Gavin McNab.

"That is all," Senator Walsh said. Roberts asked less than a dozen questions.

"We have no questions," the defense counsel said, and Walsh left the stand less than five minutes.

Former Secretary of the Navy Daniel and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, the famous Teapot Dome investigator, were scheduled as the two star witnesses of the day, but each was dismissed with three or four questions and no cross-examination at all.

Daniels Takes Stand.

There was a stir in the courtroom when Daniel took the stand. He kissed the Bible with solemnity, straightened his back, and waited expectantly for the ordeal.

"Were any leases made while you were secretary of the navy on naval reserves one or two?" Roberts asked.

"Were applications made?"

"Were they granted?"

"You may examine," said Roberts, turning to the defense counsel table.

"We have no questions," replied Frank J. Hogan, Doherty's lawyer.

Daniels, somewhat surprised at the brevity of his appearance, left the stand. He had severely condemned the Fall-Doherty leasing policy during the senate investigation and it had been expected that his testimony would play an important part in the government's case.

No Attempt at Secrecy.

When Will Ed Harris, one of the heirs of the Harris ranch, from which Fall bought, took the stand, the defense cross-examined him to show that the sale took place in the ordinary manner with no attempt at secrecy.

That the deal was closed in the El Paso Federal building and that several old friends dropped in to call on Fall while they were arranging the down payment.

Harris referred to the former cabinet officer as "Judge Fall" and the defense seized upon the title and used it constantly bringing out also that the title was bona fide and not honorary as the title and name made it a piece worthy of comparison with any

ARKANSAS WIFE SLAYS CANDIDATE

Little Rock, Ark., November 24.—(AP)—Formal charges of first degree murder will be filed against Mrs. Ruth Walsh tomorrow, according to a statement made by Prosecuting Attorney W. H. Donoham tonight.

Mrs. Walsh shot and fatally injured her husband, Harry E. Walsh, a former candidate for governor on a Sunday baseball platform, at their home here Monday night following a family quarrel.

Mr. Walsh died at the general hospital here today. A charge of assault with intent to kill which was docketed against Mrs. Walsh at police headquarters following the shooting Monday night has been changed to murder.

Mrs. Walsh will not be re-arrested on the charge of murder but will be held under a $2,500 bond for her appearance at a preliminary hearing in municipal court December 31, it was indicated by Attorney Donoham.

Mrs. Walsh claims that she shot in self defense following a beating from her husband. Mr. Walsh was never able to make a statement about the shooting.

Following the shooting Mrs. Walsh was taken to the hospital where it was reported that she was in a serious condition from a nervous attack. She has since been discharged from the hospital but her condition is said to be such that her family fear to tell her that her husband was dead.

Letter 'N' Makes Judge W.H. Ellis Chief Justice

Tallahassee, Fla., November 24.—(AP)—The letter "N" in the upper left-hand corner of a page of a new law book, brought Judge William H. Ellis, of Quincy, the chief justice of the Florida supreme court.

The court held its final drawing for a successor to Judge Armstrong Brown, of Miami, whose term of office as chief justice expired when his term of office as an appointee of Governor John W. Martin ended. Although Judge Brown succeeded himself as justice of the bench, he could not, under the law, continue as chief justice, and a last selection by lot was necessary.

Judge Ellis, who has been a member of the bench for 12 years without having ever held the chief justiceship, was the next to the last judge to open the law books today. The judges who are youngest in point of service have always opened first, and Judge Rivers Buford was in the lead-off role. He drew an "F." Judge Brown followed with an "E" and the best Judge Strum closed with an "A."

Judge Glenn Terrell opened the book at "B," and then Judge Ellis drew his "N." Judge J. B. Whitfield drew the book of the bench, who has been chief justice twice, was confident that his colleagues would be easy to beat, but the best he could do was an "A."

The six judges were striving for the nearest letter to the last one of the alphabet.

ACTOR INJURED BY BLANK SHOTS; CONTINUES ACT

While the late night audience at the new Keith Georgia theater looked on Wednesday night unaware of the fact that a real drama was being enacted on the stage before them, Charles DeRoche, headliner and screen actor, toiled through his act as if he were under a blank pistol aimed at his side.

In the act, DeRoche is fired upon by Harry S. McLaughlin, in the role of a French detective, and for 12 minutes the pistol shots have rung out with startling abruptness but without any harmful effect. Wednesday night, however, the two were closer than usual when the shots were fired, and the wads from the blank cartridges lodged in DeRoche's side.

Pain-stricken the actor continued to smile and go through the routine stage business, even to reaching the heroine as she leaped in his arms at the close. When the curtain descended he collapsed and was rushed to a dressing room for emergency treatment.

It was reported at the theater that the injury was not serious, and that DeRoche probably would be able to continue his act with no more effect than a slight stiffness of the body during the remainder of the week and an avoidance of such near proximity to the pistol again.

Officer Halts Night Chase Of Farmer

Birmingham, Ala., November 24.—(AP)—John Hall, Shelby county farmer, was today rescued near here from a band of 14 men who he said had pursued him all night. The man was barefooted, bruised and bleeding when W. J. Wood, deputy sheriff, came to his rescue 14 miles from Birmingham in response to a call from a group of workmen who gave Hall temporary protection.

Hall told the officer that he was being sought by the band because he used profanity in the presence of his landlord's wife.

The man is being held pending an inquiry.

At the approach of the officer, the mob disappeared.

Thirty-Six Students of the Southern Business College Obtain Splendid Positions

J. M. Claxton Begins With Position Paying Over $100 a Month.

Enroll now for Business Training in the school that shows results.

Thirty-six pupils of the Southern Shorthand and Business University have just gone to 30 splendid positions with important firms in Atlanta and other cities.

But great things are continually being done at the Southern, and, as a consequence, its patronage is the largest in Georgia and is rapidly growing.

After from three to four months' study at the Southern, the pupils are at least one month ahead, in efficiency, of the pupils in any of the other Business Schools of this section after a corresponding period of time.

This is a fact because, first, of the superior system of Shorthand and Bookkeeping taught by the Southern—the best in existence, the Shorthand being, by actual comparison, from 25 per cent to 40 per cent shorter in mechanical execution than in any other system.

Secondly, the Southern employs three times as many teachers of Shorthand and Bookkeeping as are to be found in any other Business School in Atlanta, hence the pupils receive from two to three times as much attention and drilling as is possible to receive in schools with one-third as many teachers.

Read the following letter just received from a grateful pupil who made a fine record at the Southern:

ARMOUR FERTILIZER WORKS.
Atlanta, Ga., November 22, 1926.
"Southern Shorthand & Business University, Atlanta, Ga.

"Gentlemen:

"As a recent student of the Southern, I feel it my duty to send you a letter of thanks for the splendid training that I received while attending your school.

"After three months' training, I accepted a position with the Armour Fertilizer Works, the salary to begin with being over $100 per month. At the end of my three months' study, I was able to write shorthand at the rate of 110 words a minute, and I feel, with the fundamental principles that I learned so thoroughly, that my speed gradually increases."

"While a student at the Southern, I found the teachers to be kind, patient and interested in each individual's work, which makes a course at that institution a progressive pleasure. I will always remember what the Southern has done for me, and am ready at any time to recommend it as a stepping stone toward a successful career in the Business World. Therefore, my advice to all boys and girls is to enroll at the Southern in preference to any other school of its kind."

"Thank you very truly,
"J. M. CLAXTON, JR."

The Southern grows because its pupils are so well prepared for work that the business men are taking them into their firms continually. The following pupils have recently accepted positions:

Miss Estelle Jones, with White-Haynes Optical Company; Miss Virginia Glynn, with Lottis Brothers & Company; Miss Elizabeth Wilson, with Parker Pen Company; Miss Marguerite Counts, with J. C. Wheeler, with Remington Typewriter Company; Mrs. A. E. Sansburn, with Metropolitan Insurance Company; Miss Connie Elliott, with Williamson, Laman & Company; Misses Margaret Haslett, Margaret Chappeler and Elizabeth Prather, with Chevrolet Motor Company; Miss Mattie Lou Adams, with Metropolitan Automobile Owners' Association; Miss Agnes Williams, with Crawford & Slater.

Miss Kathleen Tyson, with Goldsmith Brothers; Mr. A. H. Tuglie, with Citizens & Southern Bank; C. M. Jordan, with Fireman's Fund Insurance Company; Miss Ethel Fletcher, with Barrett Insurance Company; T. T. Bramlett, with Georgia Railway & Power Company; Roy McLarty, with Atlanta & Lowry National Bank; Miss Genevieve Towery, with Cudahy Packing Company; S. P. Thomas, with Westinghouse Electric Company; Roy McDaniels, with Health Products Company; Miss Mildred Hall, with Joseph Lazer & Company; Elwood Williams, with Georgia Railway & Power Company; Miss Annie May, with Fourth National Bank, and J. M. Claxton, with Armour Fertilizer Works.

The following have also accepted positions with leading firms in Atlanta and other cities: Miss Agnes George Smith, Abel Hyatt, Pink Glenn, Bob Boyd, Eldridge Blankenship, Misses Ruth Parker, Alma Jones, Ruben Walton and Zephyr Hanby and Mrs. Nell Cook.

Join the classes now. Write, phone or call for catalog. Ask Atlanta's prominent business men to direct you to a good school and you'll then enroll at the Southern.

LONDON ART SALE BRINGS $2,900,000

London, November 24.—Lord Michelman's art sale, the biggest of its kind ever undertaken in England, has brought $2,900,000.

Pictures ranging from "the Mohammedan Dancing Girl," work of an unknown artist, which sold for $5, to Sir T. Lawrence's "Pinks" which brought approximately $388,500, were the chief items in today's auction.

Connoisseurs, diplomats and people prominent in Mayfair society thronged to the sale. Greatest attention was given to the Lawrence work which was purchased by Sir Joseph Duxey. It measures 57 to 59 inches and first was exhibited at the royal academy. The price paid is believed to be a record for the sale of any such picture at an auction.

EXPAND COTTON USES.

The most urgent economic necessity in America today is concerted action on the part of business interests, not only in the south but throughout the nation, to find more uses for cotton.

We have stressed the fact repeatedly, and it is gratifying that a strong and vigorous sentiment to that end is taking hold of the people.

We see it in the eastern press, in the exchange of communications that have been referred to us from various sections of the country, in the fashion displays by merchants and by trade organizations, and in various other ways that show the trend of public thought.

It ought to so grip the people that there may be such a general awakening to its necessity that not only definite organized action to accomplish this may be taken, but that the great consuming masses may force an extension in the uses of cotton by their demands.

There are a thousand ways this may be done if a survey to that end is orderly and vigorously conducted.

Its imperativeness cannot be overestimated when we realize that not only is cotton production increasing in America, by reason of the enormous acreage increases each year in Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona, New Mexico and California, but that production is also increasing in every cotton-growing nation in the world.

Great Britain is not only encouraging greater production in her dominions in which cotton can be grown, but is actually subsidizing the same. The British government is indirectly helping to stimulate production in Brazil and other South American countries.

The acreages in Egypt, India, South Africa, and the Sudan, are all being annually increased. The only answer, if we expect to keep cotton America's great billion-dollar asset, is to keep the world's consumptive demands ahead of the gross world production, thus assuring, by the law of supply and demand, just and fair prices to the producers.

This means we must find more uses in which cotton may be utilized. It is not difficult to do. If we will reason a little, and keep the main objective in mind, we can expand the consumption with commercial uses in which cotton is now utilized sufficiently to not only absorb this year's surplus, but with definiteness the surplus of the future.

In this connection the following Boston dispatch, of November 16, in The New York Daily News-Record, is a gentle rebuke to the south that ought to carry a stinging lesson:

"Ninety-nine per cent of the production of galvanized wire clotheslines of the E. H. Tate Mop & Cordage Co. is sold in the cotton growing states, while practically all of the cotton line output is sold in the north, declares E. H. Tate, of the company, in pointing out that he does not believe the south has been doing all in its power to help the consumption of cotton."

Mr. Tate is right. The south is not doing its part in helping the consumption of cotton, and while the use of cotton instead of galvanized wire clotheslines would not of itself absorb the surplus, it is the aggregation of small things that count, and this instance can be amplified by scores of other similar illustrations.

Take the use of jute bags as another example. Cotton is a southern product. Jute is a foreign product. And yet we have drifted into the habit of using jute bags for practically every commodity thus shipped—salt, grains, flour, sugar, etc.

Take one item alone—the return to the cotton shipping bag—would increase cotton consumption enormously.

During the war practically all the shippers and mills used cotton bags—why not now?

On this page today we are publishing a communication from John E. Talmadge, Jr., of Athens, enclosing other correspondence, bearing on this one phase of the cotton consumption question.

As a further illustration of the constructive thought that is being given this matter, the November Boot and Shoe Recorder, a national trade journal devoted to that line, features elaborately a recent style demonstration held in Boston to make cotton materials more fashionable.

There were cotton dresses for every distinctive hour of the day—the morning hour, the bridge hour, the tea hour, the story hour; there were dresses for the afternoon, for the house, for the beach, and there were cotton dresses for southern resorts, displayed by the models with hosiery, parasol or handbag in style and color to match. There were children's clothes, worn by children; there was a show of sports fashions and fashions for semi-formal occasions.

The boot and shoe manufacturers are working on the problem of greater uses for cotton, and it is practically agreed that a new line of smart footwear in colored fancy fabrics, for use on certain occasions, will shortly appear.

The spirit of general cooperation, and the keen interest taken in other than cotton-producing states, especially in the great industrial centers, is heartening.

The problem is a big one, and it is too economically important to admit of temporizing.

GROWING ATLANTA!

The phenomenal growth of Atlanta, as definitely shown by the actual census and business survey just completed by the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, ought to inspire the genuine, heartfelt gratitude of every citizen at this Thanksgiving season.

With a Greater Atlanta population today of 317,000, as against 242,156 in 1920, the rate of increase—25 per cent heavier in the past six years than in the previous ten years—should give the city and immediate environs a population of 515,000 in 1946, which is only 20 years hence. This is the forecast of the engineers making the survey.

The telephone company's survey also shows that there are now 10,520 business houses in Atlanta as compared with 8,276 in 1920 and 7,090 in 1914.

It was also disclosed Wednesday that the Atlanta postal receipts so far this year have already exceeded those of all of last year, with indication that the total year's excess will reach $500,000. This will set a new percentage record.

This rapid growth of Atlanta, to which new momentum is added each month, is not only evidence of the sound security of Atlanta real estate, but is most inviting to investors and home seekers, as it demonstrates conclusively the assured enhancements.

If Atlanta can now proceed, without further dilly-dallying and obstructions, toward the city improvements for which an $8,000,000 bond issue was voted months ago, the growth and progress during the next five years will easily break all records, and will fill every desirable vacant home, apartment and business house in the city early in the new year.

A writer states that "there are no politicians in heaven." It is wonderful how he discovered that, since he's still on this side of it.

When it comes to weather signs, the old raincrow frequently beats the weather bureau, but we never heard of one getting a government pension.

Even football will soon be a comparatively sane sport. The hospitals are getting too crowded to accommodate its victims.

"Queen Marie sympathizes with the farmers." (Just as we expected—they get "recognition" on all sides!)

The Thanksgiving turkey will demonstrate what a fine filling station home is!

There's enough trouble in the world to make communities of interest everywhere.

Turkey is good enough without the trimmings for the person to ask a blessing on it before we fall to.

Talk of the patience of the children, consider how they're willing to wait and count the days till Christmas.

After a while the world reformers may know as much about Marx as they do about this rocky old world.

A Thanksgiving Chorus.
I reckon I'm thankful—
Or hopin' to be
In the country the Lord made
For you and for me.
I'm one in its trouble—
Its sorrow and strife,
And poor as Job's
But thankful for life.

II.
I'm thankful I'm knowin'
That life ain't a dream,
Though faster it's goin'
Than leaves on a stream:
That night, when it's sighin'
Its solemn farewells
Hears ringin' and ringin'
Of Mornin's glad bells.

III.
Oh, I reckon I'm thankful
The world-way along.
An' I'll join the singin'
If you'll start the song!
For saint and for sinner,
Whatever befall,
The Thanksgiving dinner,
And—God bless us all!

Briefs From Billville.

We don't pray that we be made thankful; we meet Providence halfway on the Thanksgiving route. We never heard of a hungry man that left a Thanksgiving dinner because turkey was served without trimmings.

You can be happy without shouting halloo on the highway, and anyway, it's better to "lay low," and keep still.

When the turkey is absent it's hard to ask a blessing on a crust and thank the Lord for it.

The Midnight Ride.
You have often read of what was said Of Paul Revere's fast ride,
The time he got upon his horse To warn the countryside.

They say it was exciting—
It made him famous, too,
But when they say he got a thrill I don't believe it's true.

Now, what I'd call a midnight ride—
And you'll agree it's fun—
Is not to be upon a horse,
But behind forty-nine plus one.

A summer's night, a powerful car,
The moon just peeping through,
A carefree heart, an endless road,
And on the seat with you.

And if that's not exciting,
I'll have to learn, I fear,
To get upon a horse alone,
And ride like Paul Revere.

History's Day Book

BY SAM W. SMALL.

November 25.

Today is this year's national Thanksgiving day, and is one of the landmarks that denotes the Christian character of our nation and governments.

The Puritans of New England were earliest in British America to take from the Hebrew commonwealth this example of a religious thanksgiving festival to show gratitude to God for His blessings. They Americanized this particular feast as well as "fast days" on occasions of deplorable exigency. Their custom found favor with the other American colonies and became a distinctive service to accent us as a Christian people.

The first national thanksgiving appears to have been recommended by the continental congress. On October 31, 1777, it

"Resolved, that a committee of three be appointed to prepare a recommendation to the several states to set apart a day for thanksgiving for the signal success lately obtained over the enemies of these United States."

It was the victory over Burgoyne that inspired the grateful festival that was duly held throughout the states on the following 18th of December. Then, from year to year, like occasions were recommended until by common custom the last Thursday in November became the annual thanksgiving day, proclaimed by the president of the nation and seconded by the governors of the states.

Thanksgiving day falling this year on November 25 I found that it fell on the same day in 1808 and was proclaimed in Georgia by Governor Joseph Emerson Brown. In his proclamation he invited the people of all the religions denominations to "unite in returning thanks and singing praises to our God for His wondrous works in the past and in fervent prayer for His protecting care in the future, remembering that the Psalmist has said: 'Let the people praise thee; shall the earth yield thee increase, and God, even our God, shall bless us.'"

All the governors of the states have, from our independence, issued such proclamations, and the people of the state set up a continuous thanksgiving to God in the preamble of the state constitution.

The great stores of the world, the big telephone companies, and the thousands of offices where favors are continually being asked and given know the commercial value of this habit of thanking. The thoroughness of it is a simple thing to say thank you but it always means so much.

John Deere water a boy of Edinburg, he puts this thank you continually in the mouth of his hero. Like the fragrance from the rose, do those White Terror.

Just before the last attempt on Mussolini's life he was greeted by a tremendous crowd of fascists, who shouted with one accord their: "Evviva il duce!" In return for such homage, Mussolini gave his blackshirts just what they needed to send them into delirium of excitement. The world should remember Italy was a forest of bayonets that obscured the sun, he said. And then followed the usual threats to France. If France had not such a sane, easy-going foreign minister, who can shrug his shoulders, arch his eyebrows and take a puff of his cigarette, Mussolini's frequent threats might easily be made a casual belittlement between the two countries. The big French newspapers are tired of it. "Mussolini is getting on our nerves," says the Matin. "He is becoming insupportable," remarks Le Temps. The most insupportable of all is that fascism has turned into a "white terror." The fascists have published a list of men who will be put to death if fascism or the duce are threatened. Among those singled out for vengeance are Count Sforza, Benedetto Croce and Albertini.

The Big Parade.
The war is coming back with great éclat as a fiction subject. American magazines seem to be teeming with doughty doings. In England interest in it is never waning since it is closed, but now, prompted by the American revival, the English are re-doing their energy. This energy finds a new outlet in motion pictures. "Mademoiselle from Armentières," "The Better 'Ole" and others were conceived on the spur of "The Big Parade." This picture line could not charm the English. It was too American to suit their island taste. So far the French are debating whether to produce it in Paris or not. In Berlin it is being shown to a select few in some suburban theater under another title. The critics hail it, however, as a fine piece of pacifist propaganda, but as a picture of actual fighting scenes, the Germans object on the ground that the proportion of killed is heavily adverse to the Germans. They say it is the same with all allied pictures. In a way they are right. For after all Germany lost only 2,000,000 in dead, while the allied armies lost more than 5,000,000.

Painleve.
Monsieur Paul Prudent Painleve, minister of war, former member of the French Academy, is the most absent-minded of European statesmen. M. Painleve was present at the opening of the Canadian hotel at the Paris university. A group of visitors inspected the building; President Doumergue, the Prince of Wales, Marshal Foch, M. Briand, General Gouraud and others. Painleve brought up the rear. The visitors went to the basement to inspect the modern heating apparatus. They went upstairs again and the four ladies began to leave. The Prince of Wales asked for Painleve. He was not to be seen. None of the lackeys had noticed him leave. Suddenly M. Briand recalled that he was still with the party in the basement. M. Briand descended into the cave. And there, by the flickering flames of the fire, he saw the minister of war. Looking up from his reveries he asked Briand: "Well, where do we go next?" He hadn't noticed the lapse of an hour and had been sitting there for an hour.

NEW HEAVEN, NEW EARTH.

Do you seek a pleasant country, watered by fine rivers, where game is plentiful in the forests? Do you seek a land where the hills are green and the vineyards from across the Alps, but in Europe today a similar transformation is taking place on a wide scale, affecting France, Italy, Germany and many smaller nations.

How the Alamanni waged war between the Rhine and the Danube; how the Saxons invaded the north, between the Rhine and the Elbe; how the Visigoths moved off by tens of thousands into Spain; the Vandals to northern Africa; how the Franks came out of the Teutonic woods to Gaul, amalgamated with other tribes and started modern France on its road to greatness.

This is vividly paralleled by exactly what is going on in the world today.

Wars, trouble, misery, in the end all lead to the stirring of the human tide which like the ice in the spring leaving old moorings, now comes down the river—and away.

Such far-flung migrations of the nations never was before in all history.

Everyday Questions

ANSWERED BY

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

North Berwick, Me.

The first and greatest commandment is spoken of by Christ in Mark xii, 30, and is found again in Deuteronomy xvi, 17.

The second commandment is split by all Christians to make up their code, and the last split by Catholics.

Why is this done and how do they dodge it?

To take the last question first, the significance of the Ten Commandments does not depend upon their arrangement, but their contents.

In the Jewish church Exodus, ii, 2, which Christians regard as a preface, is taken as the first commandment, and the two following, which are the first and second of the original Christian arrangement, are combined to form the second commandment.

The Roman Catholic church combines the first and second to make one commandment and divides the last two to retain the numbering. Most Protestant churches, however, observe the arrangement of the early Christian church.

So there are three ways of arranging the Decalogue. But all leave it intact and all churches, Jewish or Christian, recognize its authority.

Is it not true that the great deeds which benefit the race have been done by mutual fellowship rather than by individual effort?

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

Three men stood out at the onset of the French revolution, like three stars in a blue firmament—Mirabeau, Robespierre and Napoleon. Three of the most interesting and striking figures in all history.

Hilire Belloc tells of the last moments of Robespierre, who, after a long and bloody career, was executed, and suffering great agony, he reached to loosen a garter that hurt his leg. A guard sprang forward and loosed it. "Thank you, sir," said Robespierre in a whisper. These were the last words he uttered before he faced the guillotine.

When you give to another and you receive in return a thank you that bubbles right out of the heart of the one to whom you have given, you get back even more than you gave.

The great stores of the world, the big telephone companies, and the thousands of offices where favors are continually being asked and given know the commercial value of this habit of thanking. The thoroughness of it is a simple thing to say thank you but it always means so much.

John Deere water a boy of Edinburg, he puts this thank you continually in the mouth of his hero. Like the fragrance from the rose, do those words add to the beauty of Lincoln's character. To his friends, uncouth callers, his servants, as well as to those in high estate, he gave this simple—thank you.

It is a fine custom to have one day a year set aside for the purpose of making us all think about being thankful. To give thanks is a power greater than ourselves and to ponder upon the gifts of God and Nature and thoughtful human beings.

The greatest thrill and happiness anyone gets out of giving and rendering service to someone else is to receive the "thank you."

It never costs anything to give a thank you. But genuine thanks you are above price.

"Intransigents."

The most nationalistic Frenchman? . . . Belgians, parbleu! Thirty-five per cent of the personnel of the newly-formed shock troops of fascism by Georges Valois, their "duce," are natives of the country to the north of France. These are the troops that march under the banner of the Duke de Guise with its motto: "Everything national is ours!" They are also being trained for street fighting by experts in jiu-jitsu. But that is not all. The 100 per cent French writers, the ones who have most to object against "these Americans" and who constantly proclaim the virtues of "the Frenchmen," are Messieurs Clement Vaute and Maurice de Waleffe, both Belgians. M. de Waleffe is even Flemish. By flattery and subtle praise of things French in their daily articles and seeing in any chance expression of opinion by an American, which happens to criticize France, they manage to maintain a prestige of "intransigent Frenchmen."

So during the last few weeks we have heard ad nauseam, that nobody can imitate the Parisiennes as far as dress, that Frenchmen have soul and Americans merely a pocket full of dollars; that New York is a hick town compared to La Ville Lumiere; that Argentinian tap dancers are the only worthwhile tourists; that Americans have never produced a great book; that they are greedy and shabby; that Belgian gentils are, indeed, keen judges, even though neither of them understands English.

Painleve.

Monsieur Paul Prudent Painleve, minister of war, former member of the French Academy, is the most absent-minded of European statesmen. M. Painleve was present at the opening of the Canadian hotel at the Paris university. A group of visitors inspected the building; President Doumergue, the Prince of Wales, Marshal Foch, M. Briand, General Gouraud and others. Painleve brought up the rear. The visitors went to the basement to inspect the modern heating apparatus. They went upstairs again and the four ladies began to leave. The Prince of Wales asked for Painleve. He was not to be seen. None of the lackeys had noticed him leave. Suddenly M. Briand recalled that he was still with the party in the basement. M. Briand descended into the cave. And there, by the flickering flames of the fire, he saw the minister of war. Looking up from his reveries he asked Briand: "Well, where do we go next?" He hadn't noticed the lapse of an hour and had been sitting there for an hour.

Health Talks

BY DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

TAKE SUGAR WITH LEMON.

ORANGE AS IS.

The other day I had just rounded out—that's the precise term for it—rounded out a fine dinner with a large or hospital slab of lemon pie, the very kind mother used to make, quite unconscious of the dreadful conflict of acid and starch in the pie, when along came the news from the Humanitarian society of East Aurora, N. Y., that this combination is the cause or a cause of angina pectoris.

As long as doctors advise breakfasts of acid fruits, milk, and cereal, or other meals of conflicting acids and starches, announces Mrs. M., who designs herself the secretary of the society, "we shall have angina pectoris." Mrs. M. informs the press in her letters to editors, that she has been so well informed by this kind of heart disease and she calmly asserts that in all her experience she has never observed a case that could not be relieved by the use of lemon juice. She has been so well informed by what she cryptically calls an internal bath.

There is a joker in the boast of Mrs. M. The secretary of the Humanitarian society, and in view of the lady's imputation against the doctors I would bound to point it out. First, "internal bath" is an entirely new word. It is an entirely new word. It is an entirely new word. It is an entirely new word.

The humanitarian society, unfortunately, was not functioning when the Great Creator was going. That may explain how the Creator combined acid and sugar in some fruits, and even equipped man with a stomach which is in good working condition, contains considerable hydrochloric (muriatic) acid, and provided as the ideal food to go into this stomach, milk.

The term "internal bath" is a trick of the trade, the nostrum and quackery trade. It has been exploited for years by a notorious charlatan who markets a glorified syringe and a line of hokum calculated to appeal to the misinformed or uninformed. This charlatan syringe, but that is another trick of the trade; as a matter of record, the charlatan really invented the syringe. Before going into the "internal bath" business this charlatan had attempted to market a blindness cure, but it didn't go over very extensively, because that is not one who can see through a swindle so clearly as the blind. Nevertheless the former blindness cure quick gets his stuff in a new line of medicine.

Only mail order fakery and half-baked customers imagine there is any objection in combining acid foods with milk or with starch or with sugar, if one likes the combination.

What about contagion in the clouds of tobacco smoke hanging in the air of a public eating place, smoke that has passed through the filthy throats and nostrils of the smokers and must be inhaled by non-smokers who patronize the place? (B. M. E.)

Answer.—No contagion can occur in that way. Even the exhaled breath of a patient ill of a contagious or infectious disease does not carry contagion, though particles of secretion or moisture in the spray given off when such a patient talks may contain the germs of the disease and so infect anyone within range. In Our Postal Service.

The early establishment of an air mail service by Uncle Sam and Atlanta is a matter of large interest to the business and social world of our city and state. Assistant Postmaster General Glover thinks it most important to the general postal facilities of the south that the line be made effective soon and a small test be made of such an expedited service to the people in the southeast. Their patronage of it, when established, will determine its continuity.

The desire of the department to connect up the air mail service at Atlanta with the line now operating from there to Miami in Florida, and thus give the people and winter sojourners in the peninsular the benefits of quick communication with the main cities of the south, is a matter of public interest.

Alabama-Georgia Are Set for Big Grid Classic Today

Slagtown Is Agog On Eve of Annual Battle of 2 Teams

Thousands Are Gathering For Clash of Old Rivals in Birmingham—Crimson Tide Favored Over Bulldogs—Red and Black to Throw Strong Team Against Tide Tomorrow.

BY CLIFF WHEATLEY.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., November 24.—The enterprises of this industry-laden village belched forth a smoky welcome to the vanguards of Georgia and Alabama as the retinues of the two armies that will battle in the annual grid classic of Slagtown, Alabama and Georgia, assembled here among wild huzzas and a general welness inside and out.

Tomorrow a nose count at Rickwood field might reveal a total enumeration of about 18,000 nasal appendages. They will be divided into red and white and red and black, respectively, with the red in predominance. Thus it is indicated.

Atlanta entertained 33,000 visitors and home folks on November 13 when Georgia rolled back the Golden Tornado. If Rickwood field had as many seats as Grant field, then it might be sure that there would be a like amount at the former athletic center tomorrow.

Even though it has been indicated that there is about two chimneys, smoke stacks, or what have you to each person in Birmingham ordinarily, it would appear from the street scenes that this condition is reversed.

Most of Georgia is here. The register at the Tutwiler and the Molton and the Redmont and others of the more imposing hostilities reads like a Georgia census report.

Town in a Buzz.

The Birmingham Athletic club, to Slagtown what the A. A. C. is to Atlanta, is abuzz with intrigue athletics. But all in all it ought to be a mighty good game. Remember what those Bulldogs did on Grant field just several days ago. Any team that pulls out of a 13-point deep hole in the second half of a game is sure to give anybody's football aggregation a tough time.

Shrewd calculations on this basis have made Georgia something like a seven-point loser. That is, Alabama is favored in some quarters to win by a margin of seven points. But that is the exception. Others are more sanguine, and enacting the sanguine man of Robert Ingersoll, the air is getting rather full of feathers.

But no matter, there is enough smoke to dye all the feathers in goosehead and a dull black, and the Georgia gentlemen who only brought two colors will certainly look mighty dinky by game time if present conditions can be taken as a forecast.

The Special

A special train of ten cars, with football followers from Montgomery, Auburn, Opelika, West Point, and LaGrange, will reach Atlanta at 11 o'clock today bringing the fans to the Tech-Auburn game here.

The football special will leave Montgomery this morning at 6 o'clock, passing Auburn, Opelika, West Point, and LaGrange, arriving in Atlanta at 11 o'clock. Returning, special trains will leave Atlanta Thursday night at 8:30 o'clock. Tickets will also be honored on all regular trains up to November 27.

TEAM LEADERS ARE APPOINTED AT GA. TECH

BY JULIAN SAKS.

In order that each event shall have one man on the team in charge of it and who shall be responsible to seeing that the men who participate in each event be out for it regularly, Coach Berron has appointed captains for the various events. Each captain will try to get as many men out for his event as possible and help them all that he can.

This is something new at Tech, but it is a sure method of getting more men out, as the different captains will each be making special efforts to get men for his event.

Captains for the different freshman events will be selected later from the candidates who appear.

There will be a number of intersquad meets during the winter and up to the opening of the spring track season. The squad will be divided as equally as possible into two sections.

One of those grudge "battle-to-the-end" affairs will feature the November card of the Social and Athletic club of the Georgia Railway and Power company when Battling Moon and Happy Hunter, two husky heavyweights step through the ropes for a 10-round battle at the company's gymnasium on the evening of November 30.

The Moon-Hunter mix-up will be the chief scuffle on the 30-round card. Moon has got the best of Hunter in two former arguments and Hunter swapped places with him and pinned the go-by on him in their last scrap. Moon says the referee will lift his arm at the end of the scuffle, and Hunter is emphatic in his denial of the truth of the batter's statement. So it bears marks of being a nice sociable argument which may or may not go the limit, as both boys pack a wicked punch, it is said.

J. C. Garrett, the club's heavyweight champion, who has successfully defended his title on several occasions, will swap punches with Battling Attaway, who wishes to show folks that he has a right to the monochrome. The bout is scheduled to go eight rounds.

Southern Football To Sing Swan Song On Gridirons Today

Alabama Faces Georgia in Feature Battle of Southern Conference Schedule Today—Tech and Auburn in Annual Turkey Day Clash.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Football sings its swan song in the south today. Alabama, with only the Georgia Bulldogs between it and its third unmarred season in the south, has been conceded the conference championship. There will be scattered games among minor teams on Saturday.

Georgia Tech and Auburn will continue a long rivalry in one of the feature Turkey day games on Grant field, with neither Tech nor the Plainsmen certain of victory. North Carolina and Virginia clash in an annual battle at Charlottesville, while Virginia Poly entertain the other end of the state.

Mississippi Aggies and Mississippi fight it out for the state championship of Mississippi while Louisiana State and Tulane continue an old rivalry.

Kentucky and Tennessee will battle at Knoxville while Vanderbilt and Sewanee stage their annual classic at the Tennessee capital.

Carrying the colors of the Old Liners into Baltimore, Maryland will seek to settle ancient rivalry with Johns Hopkins in the earliest north-south conflict on the conference boards. Washington and Lee's Generals, seeking to avenge two successive defeats by Florida, seeks summer climes to end the season with the Alligators at Jacksonville.

Clemson and North Carolina State draw contestants from the ranks of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association, the former meeting Furman's Purple Hurricane at Greenville, S. C. Clemson has had flashes of outstanding football, only to reverse form the next week and be defeated by an admittedly inferior team. Her showing against Tennessee should be excellent, as she suffered an unexpected defeat from Centre last week.

With a rousing send-off ringing through the Athens campus left for Birmingham determined to put the 22nd Infantry basketball team continues going at a very rapid rate defeating the fast College Park team composed of ex-college stars to the tune of 32-21. It was their team's game until the final whistle blew. In justice to the College Park players, however, it should be stated that this was the first serious game they have attempted this season while the first team has played two games.

The Infantry seemed the class of the floor anyway and the closeness of the score is due to the fact that the soldiers ran into a hard game before the main battle and exhausted themselves utterly. However, Tedesco, the star of the Infantry, registered nine field goals during the time he played. While for the visitors scored 11.

Business of importance concerning the coming game with the Briarcliff Tigers and the Junior Military academy of Bloomington Springs, Tenn., was discussed. At this meeting the officials of the league decided to have as their guests at this game the children of all the orphan homes of the city. The officials of the Atlanta Sandlot league, Sam H. PREP LEAGUE CAGE SEASON PLANS MADE

The first official meeting of the Atlanta Prep league was held Wednesday night, at which plans for the coming basketball season were laid out for the 1927 season.

Many important matters were taken up at this meeting, the selection of the schedule committee, the kind of ball to be used in prep games and the dividing of the league into two classes being decided.

There will be an "A" class and a "B" class this season, with the following teams in those classes: T. H. S., U. S. B., G. M. A., B. H. S. and Marist will compose the "A" class, while Commercial, Decatur, Marietta and Fulton will make up the other division.

The adoption of the standard ball for prep games this season was made after quite a bit of discussion. The Wilson ball was chosen as the one to be used by the prep teams this season. Many of the local sporting goods stores were represented and after much discussion it was voted to use the Wilson. Parks, Chambers and Hardwick made a favorable proposition to the league and it was accepted. This company will award the winning team with a handsome silver trophy as well as present the members of the winning team with gold basketballs. President Morrow brought up the Goldsmith proposition which had been offered the league, but members decided to use the other ball.

Fulton High school was not represented, but is expected to put out a basketball team this season as it has done in past years.

The next meeting of the prep league is scheduled for Tuesday, January 4, at the Atlanta Athletic club, at 6 o'clock. The season's schedule will be approved and other important matters will be taken up.

Miami Invited To Havana Meet

Miami, Fla., November 24.—(P) University of Miami today was invited to participate in the international collegiate track meet at Havana, Cuba, March 16, by Coach J. H. Kendrick, of the University of Havana football team, who is here tomorrow.

Coach Kendrick expressed the hope that teams representing Tulane University, the University of Mexico and South American institutions also could compete. The Havana official is negotiating for basketball and baseball games with the University of Miami.

Marist Ends Serson With Opelika Team Today at Spiller's

Local Gridders Will Fight to Retain Unmarred Record For 1926 Football Season—Alabama Sending Strong Team to Face Bean Boys.

BY BEN COTHRAN.

MARIST will meet Opelika High this morning at Spiller's at 10 o'clock in the Cadets' closing game of the season.

The Cadets have enjoyed a week and a half of rest, and finished up their training Wednesday afternoon with a very short but snappy workout.

The Opelika team arrived in the city yesterday, and is all set to give Marist one of the toughest battles that the Bean boys have had this season. Marist has come through the season so far without losing a single game, and the Bean boys are determined not to lose this morning. If they win it will mark the second successive year that they have been undefeated on the gridiron.

Brooks, fullback, and Bobby Martin, half, are expected to carry the brunt of a Cadet attack today. This pair has been working well throughout the season, and has been the main factor in Marist's long string of victories.

Marist will have the use of a good passing combination, Martin to Lanford, and is expected to make use of it to a great advantage this morning. Coach Bean reports that his squad is in tip-top condition, and that his boys will make a good showing in their game today.

Turned Out Good Team.

Bean started at the beginning of the season with a large part of last year's second team as a nucleus for his 1926 eleven, and he has turned out a winning combination, as evidenced by this season's record.

A number of Opelika fans have made the trip, and will watch their home team in action this morning. This afternoon they will watch the game at Grant field. The Opelika team has an impressive record for this season, and the team will be no easy obstacle for the Cadets to overcome.

The game starts at 10 o'clock, at Spiller's. The Marist band, which has been practicing some time for Turkey day, will parade between halves. Officials of the school are looking forward to a large crowd for the game.

Bluebirds Ready.

Pup Phillips has practically finished training his Bluebird team for the big tilt with Monroe A. & M. at Spiller's tomorrow afternoon, and a very light workout will be held today.

University is Atlanta's only hope for a state grid title this year, and to get it the Bluebirds will have to overcome Monroe, and also Riverside.

The two aces of the Bluebird backfield, Hunsinger and Ferguson, have shown up well in practice this week, and are primed for action.

They will meet two backfield men of equal caliber in Captain Mike Jones and Pat Barron, leading performers in the Aggie backfield. Pat is the third red-headed halfback of the famous Barron family, and he performs as well as his two older brothers, who have made grid history at Tech.

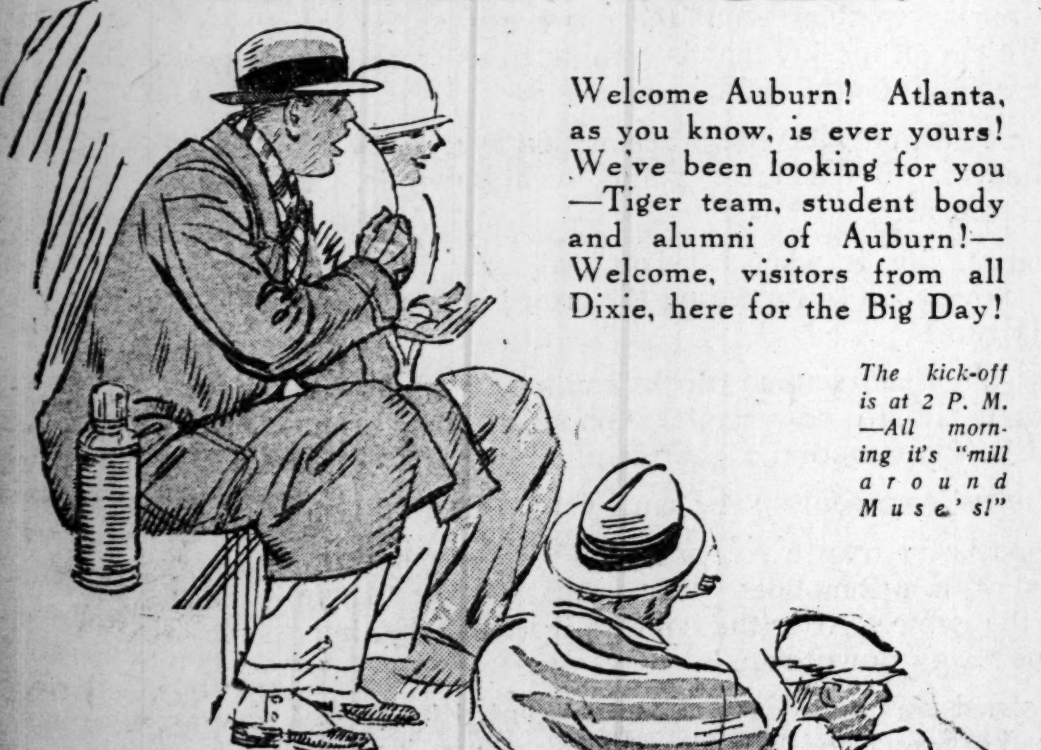

The game tomorrow afternoon will get under way at 2 o'clock. A large crowd of fans will be up from Monroe for the game, and a record crowd is expected.

Auburn And Tech To Clash In Annual Classic Today

JACKET SQUAD IN FINE SHAPE FOR BIG GAME

Team Ends Week of Light Training in High Spirit.

BY CARTER BARRON.

The Plainsmen from Auburn have deserted their prairie lair for the more fashionable, even if not quite as homely, hospitality of the Atlanta Biltmore and Atlanta. They arrived in Atlanta Wednesday and today they will face the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets at Grant field at 2 o'clock.

The Golden Tornado went through its final practice session Wednesday afternoon and though the schedule called for a little activity on the part of Dan Morey's boys it wasn't very apparent. In fact, it wasn't apparent at all because it didn't happen.

But by and large the game this afternoon should be rather good. Tech hasn't had such a remarkable year, and Auburn hasn't either. The more it is considered, the more it seems that Tech should cut the tail of the prairie Tiger and send it home on the short end of a one-sided score.

Men in High Spirit.

Coach Alexander's Yellow Jackets will swarm around on Grant field this afternoon in the best of condition, following a week of light training. Only light workouts have been indulged in this week, and every one of the Jackets is reported to be in the pink of condition for the annual struggle between the two schools.

The Yellow Jackets ended their training on the flats in the best of spirit and are ready to get going with the Tigers from Auburn. Everything is working in perfect order, and those who are ending their football career under the colors of Gold and White are expected to play one of the greatest games of their career on Grant field this afternoon.

The lineup will probably look like this:

TECH. Irwin.....e..... Burns
Tharpe.....t..... H. J. Carter
Martin.....g..... Long
Pool.....c..... Patterson
Drennon.....r..... Pruitt
Hood.....t..... Cunningham
Marshall.....e..... Ingram
Hewer.....q..... Tuxworth
Parham.....h..... Fisher
Barron.....r..... Snider
Murray.....f..... Salter
Officials: Moriarty (St. Mary's), referee; Williams (Virginia), umpire; Stegeman (Chicago), head linesman; Boatright (South Carolina), field judge.

SOME OF PRINCIPALS IN TIGER-JACKET CLASH

There's a grim, ferocious look in the ringed features of the Tiger in the upper right. On the other hand, and side, there is no appreciable indication that the Yellow Jacket is out on a mild, stinging tour. According to the best informants, these two habits of the gridiron will come together in a quarterless struggle at Grant field about 2 o'clock this afternoon. The conscience in the Yellow Jacket's sting has been removed, and the claws of the Tigers have been sharpened. The moleskin beauty contained in the layout is partly Plainsmen and partly Techmen. The center at top is Captain Owen Pool and the gentleman in action at the left is Mr. Carter Barron. Both of these boys will fondle their last football in action on Grant field this afternoon. The squares contain Auburn men. At the left is Merritt Burns and on the right is Ingram, both are ends. Bob Parham, whose erudite toe has caused much comment and also a record kick of 102 yards, is the active youngster at the extreme right.

Tennesseans Arrive Today for Grid Tilt

BY CHANNING POPE.

Young Atlantans were aglow with excitement over the news received Wednesday by officials of the sandlot league that the Junior Military academy eleven of Bloomington Springs, Tenn., was en route to Atlanta for the sandlot gridiron classic to be played Friday at 2 o'clock at Grant field with the Briarcliff Tigers defending the local honor. Fourteen players, Coach Wallace Roberts and Major DeBerry will arrive in Atlanta some time today and will be entertained by members of the sandlot league.

Through the enthusiastic help of local civic organizations the required guarantee of $100 has been met. Unusual interest has been manifested not only in the football contest but in the zealous spirit displayed by the boys themselves in arranging the game, the naming of officials, the securing of Grant field and the sale of tickets necessary to meet the guarantee.

Reports indicate that the teams will be evenly matched and a great game is assured the spectators. Those who recall the game last year between the

HAWK-EYE-ING SPORTS

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Who'll Win? Tech? Auburn? Yes.
Who's going to win the turkey? Tech? Auburn?—YES.
Do you think we are going to spot one team two touchdowns by predicting a victory for the other?

Of course, we will say that we do not think Auburn will score as many points as Tech, but we haven't the heart to predict a victory for Tech. It would be too much of a handicap for the Jackets to take into their last battle of the season.

Somebody told us that Tech would win and we agreed with him. But that is not picking a winner; now, is it?

But whether the Tiger sharpens its claws on the Yellow Jackets or vice versa, the football fans of Atlanta are going to have something to be thankful for before the final whistle this afternoon, because the Tech-Auburn game is always a classic.

Neither of the teams has had a particularly brilliant season if it is to be judged from the win column, but this only serves to make each team more anxious to end the season in a burst of glory.

Several of Tech's best men will play their last game under the Gold and White today and they will give their best as a parting gift to the gridiron. Owen Pool, captain and center, will pass the ball for the last time in his college career against the Tigers this afternoon and Carter Barron, Johnny Marshall, Mack Tharpe, Bull Irwin, Tom Angley and Sam Murray will also warble their swan songs.

Several members of the Tiger team will play their last college game today also, and will strive as hard as the Tech men to make the last stand the greatest.

Carter Barron, though not entirely recovered from the injury suffered in the Vanderbilt game, will be at his old place in the backfield and you can bet the Auburn-haired flash will do his "durndest," which is plenty.

The weather man, whose predictions are a bit more accurate than those of this column, declares that the crowd will not be greeted by rain, but that murky, cloudy skies will be in evidence all day. We hope the weather man is right, but we suspect him. A Thanksgiving day without rain would set something of a record.

Well—rain or shine or neither, it will be a great Thanksgiving for Atlanta's football fans and to those and all others who may read this column we can only wish a Thanksgiving without the usual gastronomic disorders which are likely to go with every Thanksgiving.

Vandy and Texas Avera, Shepperd To Meet in 1927

Austin, Texas, November 24.—(P)—The Vanderbilt University Commodores and Texas University Longhorns will meet in gridiron competition in 1927. H. Theo Belmont, Longhorn athletic director, announced here that a contract had been signed calling for a game at the Texas state fair in Dallas on October 15.

Avera, Shepperd To Meet Dec. 1

Larry Avera, junior welter champion of Dixie, who has been battling in fine fashion throughout the south of late, will mix with Jordan Shepperd, Macon lightweight, in the feature bout of a card being arranged for Monday, December 1, in Macon. Larry is working at present on his farm in Cobb county and will journey to Macon during the latter part of this week.

Oglethorpe Facing Leaders of S. I. A. A.

Centenary's Gentlemen, leading the S. I. A. A., will attempt to stop the onslaught of the Oglethorpe Petrels at Shreveport in the feature clash of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association Thanksgiving menu. Centenary has a clean record this season in associational games played and a good record against teams of the Southwestern conference, including a victory over the University of Arkansas Razorbacks. To win today's game gives the Gentlemen the S. I. A. A. championship.

Centenary's Moccasins, also with an undefeated denominational record, but with two ties to their credit, will have Union University as opponents. Defeat of Centenary and a victory would give the Chattanooga's their first championship.

Howard and Mississippi will provide the Thanksgiving mainstay at Jackson, Miss., with the How Bulldogs rated the better team in pregame dope.

Florida offers a full day for football enthusiasts, with Southern and Louisville meeting at Lakeland, Rollins and Birmingham-Southern at Orlando and Stetson and Maryville at Sanford.

Southeastern of Louisiana meets the Choctaws of Mississippi college at Lafayette, La., in a game of unusual interest to that section of the country.

The Centre-Georgetown and the Transylvania-Kentucky Wesleyan tilts will offer Georgetown and Lexington folk amusement for the afternoon.

Both contests are expected to be close battles.

The Grindel and Presbyterian college meeting in Charleston completes the association's program for the day.

Spiked Shoe Men To Be Initiated Between Halves

Between the halves of the Tech-Auburn football game, the men who were elected to membership in the Tech chapter of the National Collegiate Society of Spiked Shoes will go through part of their initiation for the benefit of the spectators at the annual Thanksgiving classic.

The men who will go out upon the field between the halves are Ernest Kontz, captain of the track team and holder of the Tech and S. E. A. U. 240 records; Tom Wright, a star on the track and cross-country teams; "Shorty" Bishop, quarter-mile and relay man, and Johnny Butt, popular senior track manager.

"Papa" Hood, who holds the Tech and S. E. A. U. shotput record, has been elected to the society, but will not appear as he will be occupied playing tackle on the football team.

This society is a national one whose objects are to create more interest in track, foster better spirit between the members of competing teams and provide a reward to outstanding track men.

This year the society sponsored the inter-fraternity cross-country run which was held at Tech this fall and has a number of things planned for the future.

TIGERS ARRIVE SET FOR TILT AT TECH FLATS

Game to Start at 2 O'Clock. Thousands to See Battle.

BY DICK HAWKINS.

A rumor has reached this office that today is Turkey day in Atlanta, Buckhead and perhaps some other points, and a further rumor is afloat that the Tigers of Auburn and the Yellow Jackets of Georgia Tech will battle over the turkey of football at Grant field at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

If the corps of detectives put on the case verifies the rumor, then just thing will be certain. Two such choice morsels as a Thanksgiving dinner and an Auburn-Tech football game on the same day are too much to be thankful for. Something will have to be done about it.

And just suppose that the rumor is well founded and the Tiger and Tornado do hook up at Grant field this afternoon and just suppose that the Tornado blows the Tiger back to its prairie lair. Tech will have Thanksgiving and Christmas combined—too much for any one college.

Doesn't Seem Possible.

It doesn't seem possible that all these stories can be true but we are informed on very good authority that the Auburn team arrived in Atlanta Wednesday noon and is quartered at the Atlanta Biltmore. Maybe they just came down for Thanksgiving but that doesn't seem just right either.

To add strength to all the strange rumors, today the elevator boy just told us that Tech is practicing for a football game sometime and he thinks it is to be today. Burton, the water boy, also called us up to say that Carter Barron is running around Tech flats with a 75 per cent running leg and a 100 per cent fighting face. This may or may not mean anything but coupled with the other evidence at hand it seems almost certain that there will be a football game at Grant field today.

The Negation.

Having given the positive side of the question we feel morally bound to tell some negative facts. Upon calling the Biltmore we were informed that the Auburn team was there but was not in, and in answer to a question as to the time of arrival of the team the West Point railroad gave us their complete schedule and invited us to make our guess.

And so it stands. Several thousand people who believe all they hear have already purchased tickets for the game this afternoon and are going to Grant field to sit in the rain and be thankful that it is not snowing.

In fact, we are going to Grant field ourselves just to have the satisfaction of seeing all the people disappointed when they discover that there is no game.

Ain't he mean?

Morehouse Meets Fiske Team Today

The Morehouse Tigers of Morehouse met the Bulldogs of Fiske university of Nashville, Tenn., this morning at 10 o'clock on the Morehouse athletic field.

These two teams clash annually and heretofore the games have been evenly played and hard-fought contests. Both boast strong eleven and are in good physical shape with the exception of one injury on the Morehouse squad, Lewis, Morehouse pivot man, will be out of the line-up due to a twisted leg.

Coach Robinson has changed the entire line-up of his backfield for the clash. A big crowd is expected to attend the game.

Both coaches at a late hour Wednesday night, declined to announce their respective lineups, but it is expected that Morehouse will send the same line-up which has represented her in the past into the fray.

HOUSE OF DAVID
FOLLOWERS FREED

Benton Harbor, Mich., November 24.—(AP)—Two members of the House of David religious cult, arrested by state police after an automobile chase late today, were released tonight by Prosecutor George H. Bookwalter after three hours of grilling.

The arrest grew out of the alleged kidnapping of Cora Bausch, 20-year-old former cult member from the home in Detroit of Moses Clark, her uncle, early today, by Joseph Bully and Mrs. Sarah Bell, Clark's sister.

Both Bully and Mrs. Bell were released by Prosecutor Bookwalter after being cautioned against attempts at "obstructing the prosecution of Benjamin Purnell."

Prosecutor Bookwalter declared today the move by Mrs. Clark and Bully was an attempt to kidnap one of the state's most important witnesses, who has been sought to testify in the approaching trial of Purnell on charges of assault on former girl members of the colony.

LEGION PLANS ANNUAL MEMBERSHIP DRIVE

Plans for the annual membership campaign of the Georgia department of the American Legion have about been completed it was announced Wednesday afternoon, from officials of local legion.

A number of war department planes from Montgomery, Ala., will be used in covering the state, it was announced, and Commander Emory Bass, Adjutant Joe Carr and other state officials will be passengers in the special flights, it was stated.

The campaign is under the direction of Captain M. S. Eddy, of Gainesville, and he has already begun to marshal his forces in preparation for the air campaign.

One of the features connected with the coming campaign is the fact that no member of the legion will be eligible to attend the 1927 convention in Paris unless he has been a member of the legion for one year.

The present is the last opportunity to join in order to be eligible to attend the 1927 convention, the commander announced.

ACTION DEFERRED
ON INDORSEMENT
OF BUILDING DRIVE

Formal action on the Georgia Building and Loan league's request for official indorsement of its building and loan educational campaign was deferred until Friday by the Georgia securities commission.

The commission held a special session Wednesday afternoon at which George W. West, president, and Horace Russell, secretary, laid before it plans of the state building and loan body to carry the facts of building and loan before the entire state in an intensive advertising and publicity campaign to end with Georgia building and loan week, December 13 to 18.

Mr. West asked the commission to give its official indorsement to the campaign and to issue a proclamation officially recognizing December 13 to 18 as building and loan week.

Mr. Gust McLendon, secretary of state and chairman of the commission, explained that such action would require serious and painstaking research by the commission into the merits of building and loan investment in Georgia before the commission could place itself on record officially as supporting the movement.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agents for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creosolium contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creosolium is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(adv.)

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creosolium, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creosolium is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

NEGRO CONVICT
FOUND WITH DOPE
IN FEDERAL PEN

Despite the strictest supervision and most methodical searches to prevent the possibility of smuggling narcotics into the Atlanta federal penitentiary, a negro inmate was discovered Wednesday with a quantity of morphine concealed upon his person.

Warden John W. Snook seized the drugs. Identity of the negro was withheld and an investigation as to the source of the drugs is under way.

Approximately one-third of the inmates of the prison are serving terms for violation of the Harrison narcotic laws and they are segregated from the rest of the prisoners and subjected to closest surveillance in an effort to cure them of the habit.

CONNER TO HEAD
FEDERAL PRISONS

Albert H. Conner, who Wednesday was named superintendent of prisons of the United States, is well-known in Atlanta, where he has visited many times. He was here last week and inspected the local federal institution.

During his term of office as attorney general of Idaho from 1923 to 1926, he was directly in charge of the state of that state and as such came in constant contact with wardens of the several state institutions.

John W. Snook, warden of the Atlanta federal prison, was at that time warden of the Boise institution. Mr. Conner was one of the ardent supporters of Mr. Snook for his present appointment and last week he accompanied Attorney General John T. Sargent, complimented Mr. Snook on conditions here.

Mr. Conner is said to be one of the best fitted men ever to hold the post and according to expert opinion in official circles may prove a worthy successor to the late Luther C. White, whom he succeeds.

He was born at Cardington, Ohio, February 9, 1870, and has held many posts of responsibility. He was a member of the Idaho house of representatives in 1907-08 and in 1913-16; speaker of the house in 1915-16; a captain in the 361st infantry, U. S. A., during the world war and participated in the offensives of St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne. He was wounded in the Argonne engagement.

Included among his affiliations are the American Bar association, Sons of the American Revolution, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Masons, Elks. He also is author of the workmen's compensation law of Montana. He lives at Boise, Idaho.

With completion of repaving work on Washington street from Hunter to Trinity street, the Georgia Railway and Power company Wednesday announced that cars on three of its routes would resume their regular service Friday morning.

The three routes are the Fair street-Grant park; Washington-Lakewood and Grant street-Grant park. On the Fair street-Grant park line cars will operate from Hunter to Washington to Trinity to Fair, and thence out their regular routes, returning the same way; on the Washington-Lakewood line, they will operate from Broad to Hunter to Washington and on out to Lakewood, returning the same way; and on the Grant street-Grant park line, they will operate on Forsyth to Hunter to Washington to Trinity to Fair and thence on their regular route, returning the same way.

Mr. Jackson was the son of Howell E. Jackson, former United States senator from Tennessee and later justice of the United States supreme court. In December, 1889, he married Eula Maddox, a sister of Robert F. Maddox, prominent Atlanta business man.

During the past several years Mr. Jackson has made his home in New York.

Deciding Ties—If Any

In case of ties those tied for any prize will be presented with a second puzzle, which will consist of drawing a line across the face of a chart of figures, like the accompanying chart, only larger, so that the figures thus connected will be added together to form the greatest sum. If necessary this chart will be used five times, after which should any tie remain, each contestant will receive full value of any prize tied for.

In case there are no ties on counting the Elephant's other puzzle, of course, will be awarded.

CLOSING DATE

The Great ELEPHANT PUZZLE CONTEST will close 9:00 P. M., Saturday, November 27, 1926.

The earlier you send in your solution, the longer time you will have to go over your figures and send in another solution IF YOU FIND YOU CAN DO BETTER. Additional charts may be secured by calling at the Circulation Department, or sending a self-addressed stamped envelope for mailing them.

No Solution Can Be Changed After It Has Been Once Registered

IMPORTANT FACTS TO REMEMBER

While the amount you pay with a solution of the puzzle does not have any effect on your winning an award, it does affect the amount you will receive should you win one of the first nine awards, as the value of these awards is determined by what the winners pay. This is explained in the award list, which you should study carefully before sending in your solution.

The time a solution is received has no bearing upon its winning an award. Accuracy is what counts. Not more than one award will be awarded to any one person.

Thanksgiving Day Affords Varied Forms of Pleasure

Thanksgiving, an annual day of festivity, is anticipated from one year to the next because of its holiday spirit of pleasure and feasting. The last Thursday in November is designated to celebrate the example set by those sturdy English ancestors including a small group of Pilgrims kneeling upon New England's rocky coast and offering prayerful thanks for their first harvest.

Thanksgiving day will be made the happier by the return of some absent member to join the family circle to partake of a feast which links loving thoughts together at this auspicious season. Befitting ceremonies in churches will mark grateful contemplation of ever-increasing blessings, and a desire to share these earthly blessings with one another will swell the heart with joy.

A great impulse to render service seizes humanity upon Thanksgiving day. It prompts the people of every community in Atlanta to scatter happiness abroad, serving as a medium to bring joy and mirth to rich and poor alike, serving as a basic and dominant factor in the city's progress and welfare.

Football Game.

Centering a great amount of interest in the day's events is the football game between Tech and Auburn played on Grant field Thursday afternoon. Excitement will run at highest pitch, for the alumni of both colleges will mingle with the student body to cheer each team to victory. Gold and white streamers will vie with royal purple and yellow, and thronging the streets will be crowds of people anxious to express friendship and fellowship towards mankind.

After the football game the younger set will motor to hotels and fraternity houses to trip the light fantastic to seductive jazz music, in direct contrast to the pioneer days when young folks danced to squeaking violins playing "Nancy Musk" and "Dan Tucker."

More sedate members of society will turn homeward to enjoy the delectable dainties of a Thanksgiving dinner.

Lovely Sponsors.

Miss Alice Carmichael, of Atlanta, and Miss Mabel Inman, of Albany, will flaunt the gold and purple ribbons for Auburn. From the shoulders of Miss Martha Maddox and Miss Josephine Hollis will flutter the yellow and white streamers of Tech, this foursome of pretty sponsors and their escorts to be the center of attraction at the Thanksgiving game.

Prominent Visitors.

Prominent visitors from every part of the country have foregathered in Atlanta for Thanksgiving.

Misses Edith and Marie Nightingale, with their grandmother, Mrs. C. Downing, of Brunswick, Ga., are guests at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Richardson and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nettles, of Columbia, S. C., are spending this week in Atlanta as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hunt at their home on Fairview road.

M. H. Elder, of Miami, and George Dean Pollock, of St. Petersburg, Fla., are the Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Elder, at their home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Little Betty Regenstein Given Birthday Party.

A lovely affair of Wednesday was the party given in honor of little Miss Betty Matilda Regenstein by her mother, Mrs. Meyer Regenstein, at her home on Walker terrace, in honor of her third birthday anniversary. The hostess was assisted in the entertainment of the little guests by Miss Mary Elizabeth Smith. Interesting games were played and beautiful prizes were given to the winners and lovely favors presented. The little honoree wore a dainty hand-made frock of pink chiffon. The guest list numbered twenty-five.

Fashions Sketched by Kay

With our winter weather on our heels, and Christmas gifts in our minds, fur coats should be considered. Thinking of this, I have sketched a silver muskrat coat from Keely's with brown fox collar, which reveals in the beauty of its skins for its own distinction. This store is specially featuring these muskrat coats, knowing that silver muskrat is always a favorite and most flattering to the college girl or to her older sister.

Debutantes Typify Spirit of Thanksgiving

Following the marriage service Mr. and Mrs. Beavers entertained at an informal reception. They were assisted in this service by Mr. and Mrs. George McDonald, the bride's mother, and Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Lazenby. Mrs. McDonald, the bride's mother, wore a gown of black tulle with a shoulder bouquet of Parma violets. Her hat was a picture model of black satin. Mrs. Lazenby's gown was fashioned in a similar style, and her hat was a becoming model to match. She wore a shoulder bouquet of yellow roses.

During the evening Mr. Bray and his bride left for a motor trip to Florida. The bride's traveling costume was fashioned of golden brown crepe made bolero effect and her hat was a model of brown velvet and satin combined.

A trio of charming debutantes typifying the spirit of Thanksgiving, and wearing replicas of costumes worn by the Pilgrim ancestors who celebrated the first harvest on New England shores. From left to right they are Miss Mary Middleton, Miss Idolene Lewman and Miss Runa Erwin.

The Volstead section provides how the innocent owner of a vehicle, an automobile, may recover it after it has been seized from an operator who is not its full owner; but section 3450 of the revised statutes, dealing with violations of the internal revenue laws makes the forfeiture in any case mandatory. Now the highest court says that in such case an innocent owner like Henholden is helpless and must lose the car. Section 26 of the Volstead act is applicable only if the person using the car is discovered in

The question whether section 33(1) can be extended to a vehicle stolen solely for the purpose of obtaining liquor is not a novel one. In R v. Bland,¹ the appellant was charged with the offence of obtaining liquor by false pretences. The facts were that the appellant had obtained liquor from the owner of a vehicle by representing that he was the owner. The court found that the appellant was not a party to the theft of the vehicle, and that the vehicle was not stolen for the purpose of obtaining liquor. The court held that the appellant was not guilty of the offence of obtaining liquor by false pretences, as the vehicle was not stolen for the purpose of obtaining liquor.

OAK
and Chrysanthemums
for You

Oak leaves for hospitality, chrysanthemums for cheerfulness—so says an old wisacre writing of flowers.

It is fitting that gloriously hued oak leaves and gorgeous chrysanthemums, abounding at our Thanksgiving season, should be emblems of a day when doors are open wide and friends know friends.

On the closing of the store for Thanksgiving day, we extend to our customers
—for whose patronage,
helpfulness, friendliness,
we are very grateful — wishes for cheerful hospitality.

To each of them we send,
in fancy—oak leaves and chrysanthemums.

Black Butterflies

By ELIZABETH JORDAN

INSTALLMENT LVIII.
THE GATES OF DEATH.

Kitty's voice went on as mechanically as a metronome marking time. "We—could—have—saved—our—baby—if—I—hadn't—done—so—many—silly—things. Silly—dances—on—the—table—so—many—silly—things. We—could—have—lived—happily—ever—after—and—beautifully—and—safely—you—see, Dorry?"

"Yes, dear."
"Our—way—wasn't—right, so—it—brought—the—butterflies—the—black—butterflies—Jim!"
Dorinda buried her face in her hands. She heard Jim's voice, raised huskily but distinctly.

"Why, Kitty darling—don't you remember—nothing of the sort here now?"

When she was leaving, Dorinda slipped a thick envelope into Jim's hand.
"David sent this to you," she said. "He got a check cashed yesterday, because he knew you would want to settle the accounts yourself."

Bryant nodded. He knew she was lying, but it didn't matter. Nothing but Kitty mattered now.
"She'll be quiet for half an hour or so," he told Dorinda. His own mind was clearer today, under the effects of food and other stimulants. The nurse was feeding him as if he were on a seven day bicycle race.

"She's quieter this afternoon. She has long periods when she lies with her eyes shut and mutters words that don't mean anything. Then her mind comes back for a few moments—almost perfectly clear, as it did with you just now—but she soon drifts off again."

Kitty's beautiful fingers, the fingers that had given Dorinda such music as she was never to hear henceforth, picked restlessly at the bed clothes. At this time a week ago—was it possible?—Kitty had been playing for her at the hospital. Kitty babbled incoherently.

"She may lie in this condition another twenty-four hours," Warren muttered, coming to the bedside and looking at her.
She did not. When David and Dorinda came again at six, to get a later bulletin, Dorinda glanced at the upper windows as they entered the floor and feed store and her heart dropped. The shades were drawn down. It must have happened very recently or she would have been notified. Kitty had no telephone but surely some one would have slipped downstairs to telephone from there.

Chad, when he heard the decision, went quietly into the hall with his friend.

She passed through the store with dragging feet, David following her in silence, but before they had reached the stairs a figure stumbled toward them. It was a man, overcoated and ready for the street, but it moved almost blindly, feeling its way. She caught its arm.

"Jim!"

He looked at her, then nodded.
"It's over," he croaked, and, bewildered, started toward the staircase again. Then, as if suspecting that this was not what he should do, he blinked at her uncertainly. "Warren told me to go to bed, but I don't believe I know just where the bed is," he stammered.

"Come home with us," Dorinda said as David caught Jim's arm and steadied him. "We'll see that you get to bed, old boy."
Final services for Kitty could come later. Just now their duty was to find, for this blind and groping figure that had so steadfastly followed its beloved to the gates of death, a path that would lead it back to life and sanity.

In the big guest room of the Maxwell house Jim Bryant slept the clock around, with the new master of the place slipping in and out at intervals the next day to make sure that all was well with him. On their arrival the evening before David had ministered to him like a woman—had supervised his bath, had made him eat, had finally tucked him between the sheets and covered him up and turned out the lights, to leave him to the sleep which descended on the exhausted visitor even as his host finally closed the bedroom door and left him. On the way to the incongruity of this service to one he had so disliked and disapproved touched the surface of Goddard's mind, but it did not linger. Whatever Bryant had done, and there was no question that his record was black, he had gone through his individual Gethsemane like a man. David's thoughts dropped the matter at that.

Jim came down to dinner the next night, bathed, shaved and informally dressed in his choice of Goddard's wardrobe, that absently included a cheerful red tie above which his white face loomed tragically. For a few moments he made a desperate effort to act naturally; but when he realized that his host and hostess had no idea of asking him questions did not expect him to talk, and were quietly discussing matters as remote as possible from the episodes of the past six days, he sank into the haven of silence he desired and ate his dinner in an abstraction that plainly banished all thought of where he was and what he did.

Chad was the fourth of the party, from which Miss Allen tactfully absented herself to eat her dinner upstairs. Chad looked himself again, except for a pasty pallor and a twitching nervousness that found expression in the smoking of cigarettes as fast as he could finish one and light another. Neither he nor Jim drank anything but water, though the whisky decanter stood at Bryant's elbow and for once Annie ignored its presence there.

After the meal, alone with Jim in a corner of the library, Dorinda gave him the details of the day's arrangements.

"We did everything as we thought you and Kitty would wish it," she explained. "We have left Kitty in her own studio today, because we felt sure she would want it that way."

Bryant moved and wet his dry lips.

"Alone?" he asked huskily.

"No. I persuaded Miss Mason—one of the nurses—to stay till everything is over. It's very cold there, of course. But she has coats and rugs and plenty of books, and she can read and rest."

Jim rose. "I'll go over there now," he muttered.

"But you will come back in an hour or two, and get another good night's sleep."

"No. I'll stay there. You say the funeral will be tomorrow. I want to be with her as long as I can."

Chad, when he heard the decision, went quietly into the hall with his friend and put on his overcoat and hat; and the two pagans, whose every instinct throughout their misspent lives had been to avoid pain and sorrow and physical and mental discomfort of every sort went slowly back to the icy studio through a snowstorm which had begun that morning and was steadily growing heavier.

For a moment the Goddards stood in the open doorway, watching the bent figures as they plodded through the drifts. Then David closed the door, and taking his companion by the arm led her back to the library and the welcoming chairs before the fire. On the floor in front of Dorinda's chair Freckles thumped an ecstatic tail. Everything had been very hectic lately, but now these loved creatures on whom his destiny depended seemed to be settling down to an atmosphere which a self-respecting puppy could approve. Still, after the past two weeks, he could never tell what they could do next.

3 COUNTS SEEKING BERENGER'S POST

Paris, November 24.—(A.P.) Three authentic counts were leading in the field of possible successors to Henry Berenger as French ambassador to the United States.

The decision of M. Berenger yesterday not to accept reappointment to the post, but to devote his energy toward the ratification of the American debt settlement made in his name, has resulted in much speculation in political circles as to his successor, with the three members of the nobility well in the lead.

Count Robert de Bill, minister to Rumania, and a cousin of Edouard de Bill, member of the French mission to the United States during hte war, has precedence as far as the diplomatic service is concerned, and will be named if the natural order of promotion is observed.

Count Charles de Chabrun, minister to Greece and a descendant of Lafayette, is second on the list. He was born in Washington. The third is Count Francois de Jean, former councillor at the French embassy in Washington and now director of American affairs in the foreign ministry.

Count Robert de Bill, minister to Rumania, and a cousin of Edouard de Bill, minister to Belgium, who has been in the United States during his war, has precedence as far as the diplomatic service is concerned, and will be named first. The natural order of promotion observed.

Count Charles de Chambrun, minister to the Netherlands, is next. He is a fayette, is second on the list. He was born in Washington. The third is Count François de Jean, former commander of the French forces in the Philippines and now director of American affairs in the foreign ministry.

Count de Bill is next, and that de Bill will be named if he wants the post and that Count de Chambrun is next in line if de Bill prefers to wait for a better opportunity. Count de Bill is especially favored in some quarters because of his American connections and his knowledge of American conditions.

The new ambassador, it is expected, in any case, will be a trained diplomat. He will be a man of letters, and for the post from parliamentary circles have become extremely rare because of the stormy reception given here to the Boregnen debt settlement.

Count Robert de Bill, minister to Rumania, and a cousin of Edouard de Bill, member of the French mission to the United States during his war, has precedence as far as the diplomatic service is concerned, and will be named first. The natural order of promotion is observed.

Count Charles de Chambrun, minister to Greece and a descendant of Lafayette, is second on the list. He was born in Washington. The third is Count Francois de Jean, former councillor at the French embassy in Washington and now director of American affairs in the foreign ministry.

It is generally believed Count de Bill will be named if he wants the post of minister. He is a Frenchman, and in line if de Bill prefers to wait for promotion. Count de Chambrun is especially favored in some quarters because of his American connections and his knowledge of American conditions.

The new ambassador, it is expected, will be a Frenchman, and a diplomat rather than a politician. Candidates for the post from parliamentary circles have become extremely rare because of the enormous crowd gathered here to the Brenger debt settlement.

CASE BEYOND BELIEF

Birmingham, Ala., November 24.—(AP)—charges of violating the prohibition law have been settled in the case which involved Governor Brandon and eight friends who were arrested at a fishing camp near Bay Minette, Alabama, Monday night, according to a member of the party, who arrived here today. Henderson is counsel for William Burns, who is challenging the validity of the California syndicalism law in the supreme court.

His appearance was the first of the kind in the court, which only yesterday shattered its time-honored custom of handing down opinions only on Monday.

The attorney used the latest system by which the totally blind read, his notes and other material all being in raised lettering. There was little if any delay between his fingering of the documents and deliverance of his argument and replies in vigorous tones to court questions by word of mouth. He also used an index by which he referred when the necessity arose.
